

There are many kinds of writing.

Opinion writing is where writers share their thoughts about something. It might be to tell what they like and what they don't like about something. The writer will provide their reasons.

Informative/Informational writing is when writers explain or share some information. They use facts and definitions so others understand the information that is shared.

Narrative writing is telling a story. When writers write a narrative, they describe characters. They tell about their thoughts, feelings, and actions. Sometimes, there is a problem and resolution in the story. The story is told in order of the events that happen. The words after, following, and later are often used. The story has an ending.

Write O – Opinion, I – Informative, and N – Narrative on the blanks to tell the kind of writing.

- | | | | |
|---------------------------|-------|--------------------------------|-----|
| 1. Why I Like Chess | (O) | 6. My First Day in Fifth Grade | () |
| 2. The Three Wishes | () | 7. How to Play Hockey | () |
| 3. All about Korea | () | 8. My Trip to Australia | () |
| 4. How to Fix a Laptop | () | 9. A Healthy Diet for You | () |
| 5. Weekends are the Best! | () | 10. How to Score in Volleyball | () |

Now it's your turn. Write an imaginary title for each kind of writing. Capitalize the first word and the important words in the title.

Opinion _____

Informative _____

Narrative _____